

INTRODUCTION

In 2013-14, the Institute made steady progress as the country's leading specialized entity working on China and East Asia. Relations with counterpart academic and research institutions in India and abroad continued to expand. We also witnessed a further consolidation of the ICS and its exceptional character as a multidisciplinary research institute, solely devoted to an in-depth study of China and East Asia, maintained an enhanced focus on areas of national strategic importance, strengthened our identity as a nationally networked platform for the promotion of Chinese studies and scholarship in India and pursued our mandate for continuous engagement with the public sphere. All this was amply borne out in the wide range of events, activities and research programmes that took place over the year, but also in the hosting of and interaction with scholars from a variety of backgrounds and interests.

A significant marker has been the increasing number of applications from scholars from India and abroad, wishing to locate themselves in the ICS for pursuing their research. This is also evidenced in an increase in the ICSSR Fellowship Awards to ICS Research Associates. The ICS now houses research projects ranging from a study on Xinjiang to labour issues, comparative health sector reforms, India-China boundary issue documentation and maritime security. Since mid 2012, the ICS has also housed the prestigious project undertaken by scholars from India and China to compile the Encyclopedia of India-China Cultural Contacts. This is the second year of the project.

One of the core programmes of the ICS is the Border Studies Programme which incorporates research work on a number of inter-related themes in an overarching, multidisciplinary framework. In 2013-14, the main activities of the Border Studies Programme were focused on the BCIM-Economic Corridor agreed to between India and China as part of the BCIM framework. Three ICS Honorary Fellows were appointed to a Government of India Joint Study Group on the BCIM-EC. ICS-supported researchers also undertook several field trips to Arunachal Pradesh as part of a project on infrastructure connectivity in India's northeastern border regions. The ICS also supported the organization of a major national conference at Guwahati titled, Continuities and Discontinuities of Asian Engagement: Borders, Mobility and Identity in Northeast India and Asia, together with the Indian Institute of Technology, Guwahati in October 2013. Also under the ambit of the Border Studies Programme, ICS researchers participated in several conferences in China related to its new 'one belt, one road' or modern Silk Roads initiative.

The flagship event of the ICS - the Sixth All India Conference of China Studies (AICCS), which was held in collaboration with, and in the Indian Institute of Management, Kozhikode was a hugely successful event of 2013-14. Our call for papers received a record number of 115 applications from young scholars all over the country, out of which 52 were selected for making presentations. The keynote address was delivered by Mr. Ashok Kantha, then India's Ambassador-designate to the PRC. The highlight of the 6th AICCS was the selection of the best paper presented at the conference, for the Mira Sinha Bhattacharjee Award. This cash award has been instituted in memory of a founder member of the ICS and one of India's most eminent scholars of India-China Relations and Chinese foreign policy. It is bestowed annually on the most promising young Indian scholar of Chinese Studies and at the 6th AICCS, it was Dr. Dhriti Roy, Assistant Professor at Sikkim University who won the award.

The ICS journal, China Report, entered the 50th year of its publication in 2014. The journal also saw some changes in the editorial team with Associate Editor, Madhavi Thampai taking over from Alka Acharya as the Editor and Amb. Kishan S. Rana taking over from Sreemati Chakrabarti as the Book Review Editor. The journal continues to grow in strength and to attract new readership as reflected in its rising sales.

In November 2013, we added a new series to our publications - the ICS Working Papers - which are drafts of works in progress that will eventually be revised and published. Seven have been published since then, in addition to ICS Analysis and four Occasional Papers.

A special mention may be made of the concluding event in the series of events to commemorate the centenary of the award of the Nobel Prize for literature to Rabindranath Tagore. The ICS in collaboration with Vishwa-Bharati, Santiniketan, organized an international conference in November 2013, on the theme of Tagore's Legacy of Inter-Cultural Interaction: India, China and Civilization States in which 12 scholars from China and several others from India participated. The increasing importance of the cultural dimension in India-China relations and the historical legacies that continue to resonate in the political and official discourse, were amply borne out in this conference.

One of the most substantial, long-term initiatives of the ICS in the training of the next generation of scholars was inaugurated in January 2014. This is the Institute of Chinese Studies-Harvard Yenching Institute (ICS-HYI) Joint Scholarship for Doctoral Research. Two scholarships for a period of five years each, are awarded to selected candidates, enrolled in the doctoral programme in Indian universities. In the first year the selected candidate would strengthen Chinese language capabilities in India and thereafter spend one year in a Chinese university and the third year at the HYI in the United States. This is a unique model, which would go a long way in strengthening research capabilities of doctoral scholars entering the field. The first two scholars selected in 2014 are Ms. Nirmola Sharma, registered in the Ph.D programme of the Department of East Asian Studies, University of Delhi, who is now in Fudan University, Shanghai and Ms. Veda Vaidyanathan, enrolled at the University of Mumbai, who is currently pursuing Chinese language training. The call for applications for 2015 has been advertised.

The 8th Giri Deshingkar Memorial Lecture, a series instituted in memory of India's foremost scholar of Chinese security and strategy and also a founder member of the ICS, was held on 14 March 2014 and was delivered by Wang Hui (Professor, Department of Chinese Language and Literature, Tsinghua University, Beijing) on "Why Culture? Cosmopolitanism, Republicanism, and the Great War of the 1910s." This event is co-hosted with the Centre for the Study of Developing Societies, Delhi.

2013-14 also witnessed the signing of one MOU between the ICS and the Vietnam Institute of Indian & Southwest Asian Studies, Hanoi (VIISAS) on 24 October 2013. Our weekly Wednesday seminars, the longest continuing tradition of the ICS for the last three decades, have become even more popular with larger and larger numbers turning up to attend them and the ICS seminar room overflows with the attendees. The ICS collaborated with the India International Centre (IIC), New Delhi, on a number of events and we place on record our thanks to the IIC for their invaluable support and logistical facilitation of many of our important events.

We believe that the growth and expansion of the ICS is of vital national importance. China has experienced an unprecedented pace of change over the past three decades since its reform and opening up and today it is an extraordinarily powerful actor in the global political and economic system. This presents us with important challenges. We need to have a strategic vision and address the research and educational demands that are facing us. The ICS resources are far from adequate. But it has over the past two years attracted a group of young and energetic scholars who are committed and dedicated to research and constitute the vital core of the ICS. They work under the guidance and supervision of the senior fellows and faculty, whose role in steering the ICS and broadening its perspectives, are indeed commendable. It is in fact this crucial and vitalising synergy between academics located in different universities and the younger scholars, which adds to the depth of our work and contributes to its recognition as a leading research institution on China. We continue to therefore seek enhanced financial capabilities, even as we redouble our efforts to produce original scholarship, build up a new cadre of researchers and work towards making the ICS one of the most vibrant and dynamic research and interactive platforms on China in the country.

A. RESEARCH

The ongoing research projects and programmes are sound testimony to the multi-disciplinary character of the ICS, adding depth to our knowledge base and expanding the scope of our activities. Projects begun in 2012-13 have been steadily progressing, even as some new ones have been taken on board. A short-term project was completed. Two ICS faculty were awarded ICSSR research fellowships and another recipient of the ICSSR Senior Fellowships was affiliated with the ICS over the course of 2013-14.

PROJECTS COMPLETED

THE PLANNING PROCESS IN CHINA (August 2013)

The ICS was granted a short-term project by the Planning Commission in June 2013, to study the Planning Process in China. The major objectives of the study were to understand China's Planning Process, its execution and patterns of resource allocation, its operation at the regional/provincial level, the financing mechanism, with special reference to infrastructure and social sector development and the role of the community in the overall process. The research also looked at the factors that contributed to the success as also the problems, which have retarded or hindered effective implementation of the policies.

The ICS team conducting the Project was led by Alka Acharya, Director (ICS) assisted by P. K. Anand, Spike Nowak and Sooraj Aurora from the ICS and T. Srikant, doctoral candidate, Peking University, Beijing. Field work for the Project was conducted in Beijing, Shanghai and Guangzhou and involved various institutions which facilitated our investigations such as the Centre for Chinese Public Administration and Research, School of Government at Peking University, the Institute of Economics, under the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences, and the China Reform Forum, Beijing, the Planning Division of the Guangdong Development and Reform Commission, Sun Yat-Sen University, the Guangzhou Association of Social Science Societies, the Guangzhou Development District, and the Institute for Chindian Studies, Jinan University, Guangzhou. The Indian Embassy in Beijing and the Indian Consulate-General in Guangzhou extended their cooperation during our visit to these cities.

The project report is available on the ICS website.

ONGOING PROJECTS

I. MATERIALS RELATED TO MODERN CHINA IN THE NATIONAL ARCHIVES OF INDIA

Project Director: Dr. Madhavi Thampi, Associate Professor, Department of East Asian Studies, University of Delhi and Honorary Fellow, ICS. Nirmola Sharma, Research Associate, ICS

This project seeks to catalogue the substantial - but unmined - late 19th and early 20th century interactions and exchanges between India and China, as also various aspects of modern Chinese history in Indian archives. Most accounts largely gloss over this period in a synoptic manner or resort to broad generalizations – very little academic research has gone into this significant phase. Knowledge and analysis of these resources would add greater insights and depth to our understanding of the India-China relationship during a highly turbulent and revolutionary period in Asia. The first phase of this project has been produced as ICS Occasional Paper # 3, which lists some of these materials deposited in India's premier archives, the National Archives of India. The second phase of the project is expected to begin soon.

II. COMPARATIVE HEALTH RESOURCE CENTRE PROJECTS

(ICSSR Research Project)

Project Directors: Madhurima Nundy, Associate Fellow, ICS and Prof. Rama V. Baru, Professor, Centre of Social Medicine and Community Health, Jawaharlal Nehru University and Adjunct Fellow, ICS.

Two projects were awarded by the ICSSR for the China-India Comparative Health Resource Centre at the ICS.

The first project is titled 'Transnational Actors and Commercialisation of Health Care: A China-India Comparative' (April 2013 – March 2015). The study seeks to identify the global actors and agencies and their role in health care in both countries; look at their contribution and investments and their influence on content of policy. Lastly it attempts to study the implications of these trends on equity and universality of health services.

During the first year of this project three working papers were brought out. The following are the titles of the working papers:

'Recent Trends in Health Sector Reforms and Commercialisation of Public Hospitals in China';

'American Philanthropy in Health Governance in China and India: Role, Motivations and Transformations';

'Comparing the Role of Diaspora in Expansion of Marketed Healthcare in China and India: 1950s and present'.

The second project (March 2014 – February 2016) is an award by the ICSSR that would assist in building the China Health Resource Centre at ICS. The specific objectives of this project are: to build a repository of all relevant issues on health and health care in China; to build networks and collaborations with scholars in universities and other institutes researching on health and health care systems in China; to conduct research on some selected domains on health systems in China; to publish occasional papers and to organize meetings/seminars.

III. SINO- INDIAN BOUNDARY DISPUTE DOCUMENTATION PROJECT

Project Director: M V Rappai, Honorary Fellow, ICS. P.K. Anand, Research Assistant (October 2012 – November 2013)

This project is intended to make an extensive database of all issues involving the India – China boundary and eventually make the Institute of Chinese Studies a key repository of data on all aspects of India-China relations in the long term.

The first phase is from 1914 to 1916 (collection of part of archival data and indexing of relevant publications has already been completed).

The second phase would look at the historical evolution of this issue from 1945 to 1954, coinciding with the period when the two nations emerged as modern independent states and the third phase would cover the period 1955 to 1964, encompassing the decline in relationship from the bonhomie of 1954-55 up to the outbreak of the border conflict in 1962 and the end of the Nehruvian period.

Proposed Database: Compilation of a bibliography (as also copies) of all relevant materials, including books, articles, available archival material; all relevant doctoral theses produced/published in major Indian Universities; material/copies from relevant state/district archives; and possible tie-ups with the archives of some leading newspapers of India (a basic survey has already done). The plan also includes – over the longer period – collecting all relevant material available in Chinese language, including in the archives of China, Taiwan and the UK.

IV. INDIA-CHINA ENCYCLOPEDIA OF CULTURAL CONTACTS

The Institute of Chinese Studies is the host institute for a project funded and implemented by the Public Diplomacy division of the Ministry of External Affairs, Government of India. This project is the outcome of an agreement between the governments of the Republic of India and the People's Republic of China, involving expert groups from India and China who are engaged in the compilation of this Encyclopedia. Prof. Sabaree Mitra (JNU), Honorary Fellow, ICS, is the Convenor of the Indian Expert Group. Other members of this task force are: Prof. Madhavi Thampi (Delhi University), Honorary Fellow, ICS, Prof. Kamal Sheel (Banaras Hindu University) and Prof Artatrana Nayak. In 2013-14, the project completed two years.

V. STATE RESPONSES TO SOCIAL WELFARE IN CHINA AND INDIA: A COMPARATIVE STUDY OF WORKERS IN SMALL AND MEDIUM ENTERPRISES

(ICSSR Responsive Research Project)

Project Director: P.K. Anand, Research Assistant, ICS

Globalization has had a significant impact on the Chinese and Indian economic strategies from the perspective of their respective developmental objectives. The objective of the project is to study the role of the state (at the national and sub-national levels) in both countries and on its relations vis-a-vis the labour dynamics and social security-welfare system. Against the backdrop of the changing priorities of the state under market reforms since the late 1980 and the ramifications of the departure from the state-oriented system, the research examines the institutional responses of the state in meeting the challenges that subsequently emerged. The focus would be on policy-making as well as implementation practices with regard to labour relations and the social security system in Small and Medium Enterprises in both countries, taking up the case of workers in Leather-based enterprises.

VI. COOPERATION: A KEY FOR MARITIME SECURITY- EXAMINING A CASE FOR SINO-INDIAN COOPERATION FOR MARITIME SECURITY IN INDIAN OCEAN

Project Director: Virendra Verma, Honorary Fellow, ICS

The project seeks to analyze the feasibility and practicality of Sino-Indian cooperation in Indian Ocean in the light of existing politico-strategic relations between the two Asian powers. It would attempt to determine the scope and geographic extent of maritime cooperation. An ICS Occasional Paper which would be primarily intended as a policy brief to the Government of India would be the outcome.

BOOKS (FORTHCOMING)

I. JOURNEY TO THE EAST: DEFINING INDIA'S CHINA CHALLENGE

Jabin T. Jacob, PhD, Assistant Director and Fellow

The proposed book seeks to outline some fundamental characteristics of India's foreign policy towards China including current trends in political, economic and people-to-people links between the two countries. While the work will focus on India's approaches to its relations with China, it will also be simultaneously informed by Chinese perspectives and reactions to India's rise. In the growing attention that is being devoted to Sino-Indian relations, some issues receive rather more attention than others – India's military modernization and the role of its media in complicating the bilateral relationship for instance, against equally important but under-explored aspects as the nature of Indian thinking on China, the role and operation of soft power in bilateral ties, and the structural impediments in the Indian government's conduct of China policy. Also examined are Indian perceptions of China's economic and development successes and their influence on thinking and aspirations about development at home, and the competition between India and China for regional and global geopolitical influence. Finally, the book also delves into the potentially game-changing role of bilateral economic ties and of relations between Chinese provinces and Indian states.

II. UYGHUR AUTONOMY MOVEMENT - STATE-SOCIETY DYNAMICS DURING THE REFORM PERIOD

Debasish Chaudhuri, PhD, Associate Fellow

The proposed book explores the conflicts between the Chinese state and the Uyghur minority community in Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region (XUAR). The book includes the origin of conflicts and source of Uyghur resentments, instances and intensity of the conflict and the state's response to the conflicts in the region. The trend of the ethnic conflict in the region suggests that the internal dimensions are more obvious contributing factors in the Xinjiang problem. The contemporary manifestation of the Uyghur resurgence, also known as Eastern Turkestan movement coincides with the period of economic modernization, which is characterized by high growth oriented development, causing socio-economic inequalities between regions, rural and urban population and along ethnic line. Despite huge success in economic matters, the central authority has been confronting tremendous resistance from various social groups across China because of growing socio-economic disparity. Rampant use of coercive means in maintaining political and social stability has become a normal practice in today's China. The book examines ethnic conflicts in Xinjiang in the light of on-going societal conflicts and unrests in other parts of China.

Travelled to Beijing, Shanghai, Guangzhou, Shenzhen and Tianjin and interacted with scholars, academics and policymakers. Also utilized the opportunity to do some field research on Small and Medium Enterprises and the Social Security for the employed workers in some of these cities. In this regard, visited SME units, university departments and research institutions. These include Sun Yat-sen University, Fudan University, Tianjin University of Finance and Economics, Shanghai Institutes for International Studies and Shanghai Academy of Social Sciences.

PROJECT OUTPUT

India-China Health Resource Unit

1. Research and Review on the theme of 'Tuberculosis (TB) Experience in China and India' with a special focus on Multi-Drug-resistant TB. This work was begun in February 2014 and is currently in progress. The systematic review so far involves: a). Gaining a historical understanding of China's health care system and policy focusing on shifts in ideological directions and transitions. b). Understanding the structure of the Chinese health services system and its functioning and to locate the levels where the TB programmes are implemented. c). To understand the epidemiological aspects of TB and MDR- TB in India and China and the experience of the programme. d) Focus on issues of ethics in relation to MDR-TB and issues of suffering and denial of care. e) To gain a deeper understanding of the processes of rural to urban labour migration in China and the linking of this social context with TB programme experience.
2. Deliverable outputs expected to emerge from this review work: a) Creating a resource and repository of materials on the theme of TB experience in China and India in the form of a bibliography. b) To produce a written output (perspective paper) on the theme.
