ANNUAL REPORT 2012-13

8/17 SRI RAM ROAD, NEAR CIVIL LINES METRO STATION, DELHI 110054

Registered Under the Societies Registration Act XX1 of 1860

INTRODUCTION

Over the last three decades, the ICS has carved out a very significant niche in the institutional landscape of the country. It is exceptional in the sense that there is no other research institute in India that is solely devoted to the study of China and East Asia from a multidisciplinary perspective. Its distinctiveness also arises from the academics, practitioners and scholars from all parts of the country who are associated with it - and the range of its output and activities over the years. It has now, both at the national and international level, a wide network (of scholars and researchers) and it is now emerging, through its annual All-India Conference of China Studies and its recently set up All-India China Scholars' Association, as the nodal institution for promoting Chinese Studies in the nation.

2012-13 has been an extremely momentous and notable year, packed with activities and new developments for the ICS. This period witnessed the long-awaited expansion of the research faculty. In April 2012, the ICS got its first full-time Director, Alka Acharya, as well as an Assistant Director, Jabin Jacob, three Associate Fellows, Debasish Chaudhuri, Panu Pazo and Madhurima

Nundy, two Research Associates, Peter Joy Hudson and Nirmola Sharma and one Research Assistant, PK Anand. Several Visiting Fellows working on various projects, were also associated with the ICS during the course of the year - YJ Sithara Fernando (November 2011-November 2012) Ninad Sheth (June 2012-December 2012) Joe Thomas K (December 2012-March 2013) and Raviprasad Narayanan (since February 2013); two Visiting Research Associates, Kalyan Kemburi (Singapore) and Madelina Daenhardt(Cambridge) and several interns were also located in the ICS during the year. A full time accountant and Programme Officer were also taken on board.

In August 2012, the ICS also shifted out of its location in the CSDS and moved to an independent rented accommodation at 8/17 Sri Ram Road, Delhi. The inauguration of the new premises was marked by a ‘Conversation’ on the theme of ‘Multidisciplinary and Area Studies’ between eminent scholars such as Profs. Ashis Nandy, Rajeev Bhargava and Madhavan Palat and was moderated by Prof. SK Sopory, Vice Chancellor of the Jawaharlal Nehru University. This occasion also saw the felicitation of the Senior Fellows of the ICS - Tan Chung, GP Deshpande, Huang I-Shu, Manoranjan Mohanty, Patricia Uberoi, CV Ranganathan, Vinod Khanna and Kishan Rana. In addition to its regular activities, 2012-13 also saw two major international conferences - the Twelfth Russia-India-China Trilateral Academic Conference and a conference on the Legacy of Lu Xun, as also the ICS’ flagship event - the Fifth All India Conference of China Studies, which was held in Vishwa Bharati University, Santiniketan.

B. RESEARCH PROJECTS - ONGOING

RESEARCH PROJECTS

1. Materials Related to Modern China in the National Archives of India

Project Director: Dr. MadhaviThampi, Associate Professor, Department of East Asian Studies, University of Delhi and Honorary Fellow, ICS & Nirmola Sharma, Research Associate, ICS

This project seeks to catalogue the substantial - but unmined - late-nineteenth and early twentieth century interactions and exchanges between India and China, as also various aspects of modern Chinese history in Indian archives. Most accounts largely gloss over this period in a synoptic manner or resort to broad generalisations - very little academic research has gone into this significant phase. Knowledge and analysis of these resources would add greater insights and depth to our understanding of the India-China relationship during a highly turbulent and revolutionary period in Asia. The first phase of this project has been produced as ICS Occasional Paper # 3, which lists some of these materials deposited in India's premier archives, the National Archives of India. The objective is to bring these materials to the notice of researchers in India and around the world, in the hope that this may contribute in its own way to the further development of research on China.

2. India-China Comparative Health Resource Centre

Project Directors: Prof. Rama Baru (JNU), Adjunct Fellow, ICS and Dr. Madhurima Nundy, Associate Fellow (November 2012-November 2014)

*Comparative studies of health systems are essential to the body of work on health and health care systems across the world. India and China have had very different political, economic and social histories that led to the emergence of divergent health systems and yet, in the present times the health sector reforms undertaken by both countries have been similar in nature. The Chinese health system has seen dramatic transformations due to the changing political and economic context. On the other hand transformations in Indian health system have been more gradual, though post-liberalisation there have been some major transitions. Commercialisation and privatisation, introduction of different financing mechanisms, issues related to access, equity and quality of services are some key domains to be studied. The health resource centre will build a repository on relevant issues on health systems in China; will build networks and collaborations with scholars, institutes and centres conducting research on health system in China; will conduct research on some selected domains from a comparative perspective with India.

3. Sino-Indian Boundary Dispute Documentation Project

Project Director: M V Rappai, Adjunct Fellow, ICS & P.K. Anand, Research Assistant (October 2012-November 2013)

This project is intended to make an extensive database of all issues involving the India - China boundary dispute and eventually make the Institute of Chinese Studies (ICS) a key repository of data on all aspects of India-China relations in the long term. The first phase would be from 1914 to 1916 (the period with the most direct relevance to the current project; the second phase would look at the historical evolution of this issue from 1945 to 1954, coinciding with the period when the two nations evolved as modern independent states and the third phase would cover the period 1955 to 1964, encompassing the decline in the relationship from the bonhomie of 1954-55 up to the outbreak of the border conflict in 1962 and the end of the Nehruvian period.

Proposed Database: The attempt would be to compile a bibliography (as also copies) of all relevant materials, including books, articles, archival material available; all relevant doctoral theses produced/published in major Indian universities; material/copies from relevant state/district archives; and possible tie-ups with the archives of some leading newspapers of India. The plan also includes - over the longer period - collecting all relevant material available in Chinese language, including in the archives of P R China, Taiwan and the UK.*

4. Encyclopedia of India-China Cultural Contacts

The Indian Expert Group working on this project: Prof. Sabaree Mitra, Dr.

MadhaviThampi, Prof. Kamal Sheel and Prof. ArtatranaNayak.

IN August 2012, an MOU was signed between the ICS and the People's Diplomacy Division of the Ministry of External Affairs, whereby the ICS was chosen as the host agency for this prestigious project. In the Joint Communiqué signed between the Indian Prime Minister Dr. Manmohan Singh and the Chinese Premier Mr. Wen Jiabao during the latter's visit to India in December 2010, both sides had agreed to collaborate and jointly compile an Encyclopedia of India-China Cultural Contacts. An Expert Group was constituted by the Ministry of External Affairs comprising Prof. Sabaree Mitra, Dr. Madhavi Thampi, Prof. Kamal Sheel and Prof. Artatrana Nayak. After several rounds of meetings, a Concept Note, which was initially drafted in April 2011, was discussed and finalized in September and was forwarded to the Chinese side. In early November, 2011 it was agreed that this joint effort, comprising one (or at best two) volume(s) of about six hundred entries, would cover the period from the ancient through to the contemporary. The compilation and publication is expected to be completed in two and a half to three years.

BOOK PROJECTS

1. Journey to the East: Defining India's China Challenge

Dr. Jabin T. Jacob, Assistant Director and Fellow, ICS

This book takes a comprehensive look at the nature of current political, economic and people-to-people linkages between India and China. In the process, the book also seeks to outline some fundamental characteristics of India's foreign policy including current trends. While the work will focus on India's approaches to its relations with China, it will also be simultaneously informed by Chinese perspectives and reactions to India's rise, with a special focus on hitherto under-explored aspects such as the role of India's internal security considerations in its northeast or the role of sub-regionalism as a leg of the Sino-Indian diplomatic engagement. It will be the purpose of this work to examine both sets of themes in order to put forward a more holistic understanding of the workings of the Sino-Indian bilateral relationship.

2. Uyghur Autonomy Movement - State-Society Dynamics during the Reform Period

Debasish Chaudhuri (PhD), Associate Fellow, ICS

The proposed book explores conflicts between the Chinese state and the Uyghur minority community in Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous Region (XUAR). The book begins by looking into the origins of the conflict and the source of Uyghur resentments, instances and intensity of the conflict and state's response to the conflicts in the region. The trend of the ethnic conflict in the region suggests that the internal dimensions are more obvious contributing factors in the Xinjiang problem. The contemporary manifestation of the Uyghur resurgence, also known as the Eastern Turkestan movement, coincides with the period of economic modernization which is characterized by high growth oriented development, causing socio-economic inequalities between regions, rural and urban population as also along ethnic lines. Despite huge success in economic matters, the central authority has been confronting tremendous resistance from various social groups across China because of growing socio-economic disparity. Rampant use of coercive means in maintaining political and social stability has become a normal practice in today's China. The book examines ethnic conflicts in Xinjiang in the light of on-going societal conflicts and unrest in other parts of China.

MONOGRAPHS

1. Political Reform, the Dissent Movement and Democracy since the Publication of Charter '08.

Debasish Chaudhuri (PhD), Associate Fellow, ICS

The publication of Charter '08 is the most earnest effort by Chinese pro-democratic forces and human rights activists since the Tiananmen incident in 1989. It appears to be a sincere but weak attempt to promote liberal ideals as well as consolidate various dissenting voices across the country. However, numerous social conflicts and unrest in recent years across China are indicative of deep aspirations for political democratization among the various social forces. The project also focuses on the much sought after political reforms and related discourses prevalent among Chinese official and academic circles.

2. Coal, Oil and Atoms- Debates on Japan's Energy Choices During the Period 1945-1960

Peter Joy Hudson, Research Associate, ICS.

This monograph would look at the debates prevalent within and among the occupation-period American policy makers, the Japanese bureaucracy, the political leaders and the trade unions, during the early post war period, which finally led the Japanese economy and industry to rely on oil. Although this was the larger trend world over, in the Japanese case it had to rely on imports even more. It would also look at the debates, which finally led to the beginning of a nuclear power development program in the mid-1950s, when Japanese society had hardly recovered from the sufferings caused by the twin atomic bombings.

3. India-China Collaboration in Third Countries: the Feasibility of Cooperation in Hydro-Electricity Projects in Nepal.

Panu Pazo, Associate Fellow, ICS.

Since 1995, when the World Bank withdrew its US$ 1.1 billion support for the Arun III dam in Nepal due to various problems, all major foreign funding for hydro-power projects in Nepal had been stalled. A decade ago, the Chinese began to show keen interest in rejuvenating the hydro-power potential of the country. With current estimates of approximately 40,000 MW of economically feasible hydropower potentials and only 600 MW being realized so far, Chinese companies have already built inroads into Nepal's power sector with several agreements to build dams in Nepal's major rivers. The study will look into Chinese investments in Nepal's hydro-power projects and will compare it with India's position and how it could affect overall India-Nepal relations. It will also map the contours of future implications for joint collaboration in harnessing hydro-power potentials between China and India in Nepal.

The Society prepared its accounts on Accrual Basis, except: liabilities for taxes arising on completion of assessment are accounted for as and when raised.

II. Fixed Assets & Depreciation

Fixed Assets are stated at Historical Cost Less Depreciation, which are inclusive of taxes and incidental/installation charges thereto.

Depreciation on fixed assets is provided according to the rates prescribed by the Income Tax Act'1961.

Depreciation of fixed assets has been provided from the date that a particular asset was put to use.

III. Investments

Long Term Investments are stated at cost. They are suitably adjusted to recognize permanent diminution in value, if any. Current Investments are valued at cost or market price, whichever is lower.
